

TÜV UK Ltd – Certification of integrated management systems

An integrated management system (IMS) combines various requirements into a comprehensive management instrument.

Traditional IMS certification takes ISO 9001 (quality) and 14001 (environment) and also BS OHSAS 18001 (occupational health and safety) into consideration. This means that all the requirements of customers, markets, state and company can be fulfilled in a targeted way.

Target groups for certification

Handling the simultaneous use of different management systems is particularly difficult for small and medium-sized enterprises, where product quality, environmental protection and health and safety all play a role. This is where an IMS which is certified by TÜV NORD offers decisive advantages.

Benefits of certification

This is how an integrated management system from TÜV NORD CERT can contribute to the success of an organisation:

- Themes such as internal audits, goals and programmes, control of documents and data and also preventive and corrective measures are handled at an integrative level
- Utilisation of synergies and additional resources
- Employees are motivated by optimised processes
- Processes within the organisation are easier to handle
- Reduction of interface problems
- Concentration of information
- Lower costs through savings in power usage and waste reduction
- Clear regulation of processes and responsibilities
- Transparency of business processes
- Introduction of a systematic procedure
- Possibilities for assessment of suppliers and subcontractors
- Reduction of production defects
- Fulfilment of legal and environmental requirements
- Securing of the core business through the ability to provide legal proof if required
- Examination of in-house safety standards
- Reduced duplication and therefore costs

Certification content

TÜV NORD CERT offers one-stop certification of integrated management systems and can therefore considerably reduce audit time and expense. It is also possible to minimise possible disturbances to company processes by means of an integrated audit.

Auditing follows the process approach. This means that problems extending over several areas are immediately recognised during consideration of interfaces. All potential possibilities for improvement are identified during the integrated audit and documented.
